The Partition Problem — and the Open-Source Solution America Won't Hear From Either Side

A Response to Partisanship, from Outside the Partition Joseph Allen Sprute — Founder & Director, ERES Institute for New Age Cybernetics Bella Vista, Arkansas | March 2026

Senator Schiff,

I'm not writing as a Democrat. I'm not writing as a Republican. I'm writing as a U.S. Army veteran (Oregon Army National Guard, 1983–1989, Infantry 11B, Honorable Discharge) and independent researcher who has spent thirty years building what neither party has produced: a complete, open-source governance architecture with falsifiable metrics, published proofs-of-work, and zero partisan dependency.

Your concern about partisanship is valid. Your framing of it is incomplete. Here's why — and here's what exists right now to solve it.

I. WE Have an Existent-Responsibility

"WE" is not a slogan. "AS" is not an acronym for a party.

WE × AS — every living human, as A-Species — carry an Existent-Responsibility (ER) to govern over Earth and whatever spaces we come to inhabit. Not Republicans. Not Democrats. Not corporations. Us. United by States of Humanity.

This is not philosophy. This is engineering.

The ERES Institute has formally published the equation that governs this responsibility:

> C = R × P / M Cybernetics = Resource × Purpose ÷ Method

Every governance failure in American history — every partisan deadlock, every captured regulatory body, every unfunded mandate — can be mapped to a breakdown in one of these three variables. Resource hoarded instead of allocated. Purpose replaced by re-election calculus. Method obscured behind closed-door committee procedures.

The partisan frame doesn't diagnose the disease. It is the disease. It partitions the problem-space so that no complete solution can emerge from within either side.

II. Governance Begins and Ends with SELF-$ELF

Senator, you govern a constituency. But governance — real governance — begins with the individual. The dollar sign in $ELF is intentional: the self and the economic self are inseparable, and any governance framework that pretends otherwise is lying to the people it claims to serve.

ERES has formalized this through EarnedPath:

> EP = CPM × WBS + PERT

This isn't a bumper sticker. It's a project-management-grade formula mapping every citizen's trajectory from credential to contribution to compensation. It connects directly to the SCALULAR certification architecture — four pillars of lifelong credentialing (Health, Law, Protection, Skills & Trade) delivered relatively free through UBIMIA economics. Tier 1 baseline: SSSC — Solid-State Smart-City Citizen. A credential that says: this person can govern themselves, and therefore can meaningfully participate in governing others.

No party offers this. Both parties benefit from its absence. An ungoverned self is a dependent voter.

III. The Empirics Demand Transparency, Not Theater

The third principle is the hardest for Washington to swallow:

> Clear ProblemSolution Definition with Directly-Involved (DDI) Empirics requires Science and A-to-Z Transparency.

Not selective transparency. Not declassified-after-thirty-years transparency. A-to-Z. The entire causal chain from problem identification through solution deployment, published in the open, subject to falsification by anyone with the competence to evaluate it.

ERES has done this. Over 300 publications on ResearchGate. Open-source repositories on GitHub. Formal submissions to The Hague (ERES-HAGUE-2026-001). International conference submissions (DBDM 2026, Sydney). A ten-part, 323-paragraph legal instrument — the ERES-SCALULAR-ENGINE-2026 — published as a perpetual open-source framework. ISO and ANSI standard submissions completed.

Every claim carries a citation. Every framework carries a falsifiable metric. Every architecture is published under the CARE Commons Attribution License v2.1 — meaning anyone, anywhere, can verify, critique, adapt, or build on this work.

Name one partisan initiative from either party that meets this standard.

The Storm Party and the Patriot Dividend: A Real Proposal for a Real Country

Here is where theory meets the road.

The Storm Party is not a third party. It is an open-source governance overlay — a framework for Americans who are tired of choosing between two brands of the same institutional failure. It operates on a single premise: the best ideas win, regardless of origin, and every citizen has a stake in the outcome.

The mechanism: the Patriot Dividend.

Not a stimulus check. Not a handout. A mathematically grounded return on national productivity, delivered through UBIMIA (Universal Basic Income via Meritcoin and Intelligent Allocation) economics. Every American who participates in the EarnedPath framework — who earns credentials, contributes to community, maintains civic engagement — receives a dividend from the nation's collective output.

This was formally submitted to President Trump on March 17, 2026, as part of a comprehensive brief covering:

- BORDERS: Sovereign integrity through transparent, merit-based frameworks — not walls and not open borders, but governed permeability with published criteria.
- Space Dominance via VRD: The Electromagnetic Space Vehicle via Resonant Drive (ESVRD) — a propulsion white paper anchored to Hyland 2025 epitaxial semiconductor data, with a falsifiable Phase 1 experiment design. America's next frontier, engineered in the open.
- NPR/DOGE Alignment: The New Paradigm Republic framework mapped directly to existing efficiency mandates — showing how open-source governance architecture complements rather than competes with current reform efforts.
- Storm Party Integration: A cross-partisan civic architecture that gives every American — left, right, independent, disengaged — a concrete path from passive voter to active participant in national problem-solving.

This is not a pitch. This is a published, citable, falsifiable body of work that exists today in the public domain.

The Question for Senator Schiff — and for Everyone Reading This Partisanship is not the problem. Partisanship is the symptom of a governance architecture that has no equation, no metric, no feedback loop, and no accountability mechanism that operates faster than a four-year election cycle.

ERES has built the replacement architecture. It is open-source. It is published. It is free.

The question is not whether it works — the publications exist for anyone to evaluate. The question is whether the people inside the partition are willing to look at what's been built outside of it.

Three foundational principles. That's all it takes to start:

1. Don't hurt yourself.
2. Don't hurt others.
3. Build for generations to come.

These aren't partisan. They're human. And they are the engineering requirements from which every ERES framework is derived.

The door is open. The work is done. The only thing missing is the will to walk through.

Addendum: The EarnedPath Library Is Already Built

This isn't future tense. The ERES Institute secured the EarnedPath TLD library over a decade ago — EarnedPath.com, EarnedPath.net, and EarnedPath.org — registered and held in trust for exactly this moment. The civilian infrastructure is ready. The open-source frameworks are published. The credentialing architecture is designed.

What remains are three domains that only institutional will can activate:

- EarnedPath.gov — Federal adoption of open-source citizen credentialing.
- EarnedPath.edu — Academic integration of the same SCALULAR architecture that makes lifelong learning a credential, not a debt sentence.
- EarnedPath.mil — Military integration of the same framework that produced this veteran's thirty-year body of work.
- EarnedPath.spt — Storm Party TLD: the cross-partisan civic layer where every American's EarnedPath lives, independent of who holds office.

Four domains. Four handshakes. The architecture behind them already exists in the public record for anyone — Senator, Secretary, or citizen — to evaluate, verify, and build upon.

The offer is open.
